FIGHT AGAINST BURLINGTON.

Meeting of Southwestern Passenger Bureau-Wabash Earnings -Directors Elected-General Notes.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL New York, Oct. 19.-In the close passenger traffic arrangement, just announced between the Union Pacific, controlled by E. H. Harriman, and the Denver and Rio Grande system, controlled by George J. Gould, Western railroad men see a decided menance to the community-of-interest idea. The general passenger agent of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, which is part of the Union Pacific system, has issued a circular regarding the routing of business originating on that line over the Denver and Rio Grande.

This arrangement is a direct discrimina-tion against the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which is part of the Northern Pacific system, controlled by J. Plerpont Mor gan and James J. Hill. It will also affect the interests of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific and the St. Paul system. Reports from Western points indicate that it is the intention of Harriman and Gould to control all of the Pacific Coast business if

New York, Oct. 10.—The Evening Post says:

"President Underwood, of the Eric Railroad, is to resign that office: which he has held for only a few months. His action is but one step in carrying out a very important plan for the future operation of the Great Northern. Change of Form of Worship.

That the spirit of the Huntington amendment to the amendment permitting modified forms of worship still lives despite defeat was shown by the presentation in the assessment to the amendment couched in almost lits exact language. The principal change is the adoption of a resolution that no form of worship allowed shall be in conflict with the canons of the church. It was referred to a committee.

The Reverend E. Winchester Donald of Massachusetts, who presented the proposed amendment, created quite a sensation by declaring, in the course of his remarks, that he did not consider ordination necessary. The House of Bishops devoted most of the day to consideration of the qualification of the various persons who are desirous of filling the vacant missionary bishops for the day to consideration of the qualification of the candillates to-morrow.

Mrs. Edwin Harrison's Opinion. Mrs. Edwin Harrison's Opinion that young women's abandonment of the domestic field was the prime cause of the scarcity of good servants. In discussing the question, she said:

Opinions From the Other Side.

The "other side" of the question was discussed by three young women, who have strong reasons for their dislike of household work, and who are not averse to expressing them. Almost without exception they give in explanation of their preference for other than household work the regularity of hours and the lelsure time which they have in their present employment.

Miss Anna G. Kelly of No. 422 Bisine avenue is employed in a local tobacco manufactory, and said she finds the work more agreeable than domestic service. In stating her reasons for her preference, Miss Kelly said:

her reasons for her preference, Miss Kelly sald:

"I do not believe that it is as agreeable as my employment in the factory. I earn an average of $\tilde{\text{i}}$ is as my employment in the factory. I earn an average of $\tilde{\text{i}}$ is a seek, or as much as a great many servant girls receive for a month's work. Besidea, I have more time to myself than I could expect if employed as a domestic servant. I know when I must go to work and when I shall be finished. That is more than a girl employed doing housework can say. Her work is never done; and she has usually only one afternoon or evening in each week for recreation. I am at home with my family every evening and every Sunday, and nearly every holiday. I don't think a girl of any independence will choose domestic service as a means of earning her livelihood. Girls of American birth and training especially find it hard to submit to the treatment that servant girls sometimes have to endure."

or American birth and training especially find it hard to submit to the treatment that servant girls sometimes have to endure."

Menial Occupation and Poor Pay.

Miss Lydia De Moulin of No. 284 Locust street, who, also, is employed in a manufacturing establishment, regards her work there as being more remunerative and pleasant than the performance of household duties.

Miss De Moulin said:

"I object to domestic service because, in the first place, I think it is menial occupation, and, secondly, because the pay is far below the average of almost any other employment. But even if the wages were higher and the treatment good, which is not always true, I should still object to the almost interminable drudgery. One afternoon or evening in the week is as much as a servant girl that she wear some sort of uniform or habit which proclaims her calling. That is another feature to which I strongly object."

Miss Anna M. Buckner of No. 2854 Locust street agreed with Miss De Moulin in most essential points when asked for opinion. She said:

"I am familiar, from serving as seamstress, with the work that is required of one who engages with a family. I know that in some instances the servant girl is not well treated, and is expected to be constantly at work. She is the first astir in the morning and the last asleep. The pay, I think, is not as large as can be earned in shops and factories, and there is less time for recreation.

"To my mind these are the reasons for the refusal of girls to become house servants. And to enter factories and stores where the pay is as good or better and where the hours are much shorter."

Mrs. John J. O'Fallon's Theory.

Mrs. John J. O'Fallon said:

"The cause of the scarcity I should give as desire of young girls to work in shops and factories. Women have taken the place of men in a great many lines of activity, and their number is increasing.

There are thousands of girls now employed in factories and other industrial establishments where a few years ago there were but hundreds. These young women, perhaps, work in factories because they have more time to themselves."
